

AL 9-9-9, S FIREMEN 2!

through me with my hosepipe, those little fire-are back at it again. Yes, Human's soak 'em up king away to a wet Super NES as we speak. If back through your old copies of NMS you'll see absolutely went mad over this bizarre tale of ishment when we reviewed it. Not much is about xactly ns in e two,

u can rest
d that it'll stuff and n as we et our gloves ere near you, the lock, will first to visdom.

I GOT THE POWER

Great news for all of you out there in Game Boy land, rechargeable batteries that even charge your standard normal ones and not just those dead expensive Ni-Cad ones that cost a bomb. Admittedly, the Eco Charger costs a bit more of your hard earned wonga up front, but once you've got one, well, it's easy gaming. This sucker can also charge up batteries for your CD players and tape decks. In fact it'll handle most sizes that domestic appliances handle and it's also good for your environment.

LOST IN SPACE

More news this month of intelligent life from another planet. Well, not so much a different planet as an alternative reality. A Virtual Boy reality to be exact. And the invaders are none other than our favourite invaders ever, the Space Invaders. You've got it, the most well known game of all time is about to beam itself aboard the

Virtual Boy. We won't waste your time by telling you the ins and outs of play 'cos you're bound to know them already, but as you can see from our shots, it'll feature a straightforward 2D version (for people who like a flat life) and a brilla 3D
'hey man I've been in different parallel for a while' version. More soon.
