MARIO 64

48

Mario runs, swims and flies in three dazzling dimensions. All you have to do is flip to our exclusive preview, which includes the very first map of the game the critics are already calling the greatest ever.

THE NEXT GREAT ONE

22

Game On! Wayne Gretzky's 3-D Hockey is the first totally 3-D sports game for the Nintendo 64. Get the inside story on the facts and features, and learn why this sports title is gonna check the competition onto thin ice.

POWER CHARTS

Ken Griffey Jr. pulls a rare feat this month as he slugs his way onto the Top 20 Chart twice. Meanwhile, eager gamers have pushed Super Mario 64 to the upper reaches of the Most Wanted chart. Ecstatic reviewers are already calling it the greatest game of all time. You can be the judge when Super Mario 64 and the N64 debut in September!

Stage Select and Green Crystal Refill

We printed a Red Crystal Refill code in Volume 84, and now we've got a Stage Select and a Green Crystal code, too. To access the Stage Select screen, go to the Configuration screen and highlight the word "Exit." Now press L, L, R, R, R, L, L and L (L and R are the L and R Buttons, not Left and Right). The Stage Select screen will then appear. To max out your Green Crystal (Health) meter, first perform a spinning back kick by pressing Away and Y simultaneously. Now pause the game and press Up, X, Right, A, Down, B, Left and Y. Press Start to return to the game. With all these codes, you'll have no trouble putting Drac down for the count!

Press Up and Down to select a stage, then press Start.

The Green Crystal code can be used at any time.

Hidden Music

On the Stage Select screen, highlight the Shade Man stage and press and hold the B Button to hear a hidden melody. Long-time gamers will recognize the tune!

This trick works only if you haven't completed the stage.

Hint: the music is from a "ghostly" Capcom classic!

Unlimited Lives and Continues

This is a little trick that we just stumbled across by chance. If you're running out of lives, just press Start to pause, then return to the Batcave. You'll have to start all the way back at the beginning of the level, but your Health meter will be replenished, and you'll have a full complement of lives and continues! (The exact number will depend on the difficulty level you're playing on.)

You can use this trick at any point in the game.

The war against crime is never ending!

More Hidden Icons

As we were flying around blowing things up in Red Alarm, we discovered a few more hidden icons scattered around in Stages One and Two. In Stage One, fly through the stage until you enter the first room with large pillars in it. Shoot at the base of the walls just before the exit to find a wire-frame Virtual Boy and Virtual Boy controller. In Stage Two, shoot at the walls around the waterfalls and see what happens.

We wonder who left this behind?

This is no time for gawking! The enemy awaits!

ZERO RACERS

TM

FLAT-OUT SPEED

S trap on a seatbelt and toss out your driver's license, because Zero Racers ignores the laws of gravity and man. Nintendo's new Virtual Boy® racer shoots the red light and takes you to the edge of panic. If you like narrow spaces and high-speed chases, Zero Racers will be right up your alley. It's the game Virtual Boy® was designed to run.

© 1996 NINTENDO

Remember the rush you got when you first played F-Zero on the Super NES? You leaned, you screamed, you turned the car around and went shooting back the wrong way just to smack into the oncoming cars. Those heady days of hurtling mayhem are back again, but this time it's taking place in the territory of that masked stranger known as Virtual Boy. This time you're in the cockpit of a racing rocket, navigating inside tunnel courses. In Grand Prix mode, drivers challenge the entire series of tunnels. Practice mode lets you check out the tracks before the big race and set time records. Since your juiced-up jet flies at speeds approaching 1000 kph, and the tunnel walls are just a few virtual feet away, there is no room for error.

Each of the racers expends fuel when accelerating or slamming into walls. Luckily, you can fill up on juice at the refueling strip.

Some vehicles corner well while others are good for flat-out speed. Choose the right one for each course.

IN THE COCKPIT

The number one job, once you climb into the driver's seat, is to keep from splattering your ship all over the tunnel walls and ceiling. The throttle, brake and left/right steering controls are standard, but you also have a Turbo Boost button and your vehicle can dive or climb to give you full control in three dimensions. You'll need that control since the tunnels twist, dip, turn and dive like a roller coaster.

Zero pilots have total control over their ships in the tunnel. Fly high or low depending on the course.

Mean Machines

FALCON

FALCON

The Falcon is a good all-around ship with medium acceleration, good turning and a fairly high maximum speed of 852 kph. For tunnels with turns and straightaways, the Falcon works well.

STINGRAY

STINGRAY

At 837 kph and slower acceleration than the Falcon, the Stingray shines in narrower tunnels where turning control is vital and top speeds are seldom reached.

TUNNEL FLYING

Before racing in a tunnel, you can fly through it using the VTR option. You'll make a complete circuit of the track so that you can see all the nasty surprises waiting for you. The three circuits have five tracks each—15 courses in all—enough to keep Grand Prix racers primed and paranoid.

Tunnel A5 in the Practice mode consists of 11,110 meters of white-knuckle flying terror.

Tunnel A4 features lots of turns, but not many ups and downs. You'll need a ship that corners well.

Tunnel A3 is fairly short with lots of curves and few places to use the Turbo.

Obstacles and sharp turns make for a bruising ride in Tunnel A2.

GOOSE

GOOSE

The heavy Goose has a slow acceleration curve and modest cornering characteristics, but when it gets up to top speed at 862 kph, it blows away everything else.

ORIGAMMY

ORIGAMMY

The paper-light Origammy accelerates instantly and whips around corners like it's on a rail, but the maximum speed is only 835 kph. You'll want this ship in the most twisted tunnels.

the Blue Bomber against his arch-rival, Dr. Wily. Bugs Bunny Crazy Castle (1989) featured that wascally Warner Bros. wabbit. Just to emphasize how much things have changed since then, Kemco and Seika have since split to become two separate companies. The Player's Choice Game Boy series rereleases some of the best Game Boy games ever for a discount manufacturer's suggested price of just $19.99.

DONKEY KONG COUNTRY 3: DIXIE'S DOUBLE TROUBLE

We just can't help ourselves from taking more looks at DKC3. The future may belong to the N64, but for the present, the 64-bit Kong of video game systems will have to share the throne with the Super NES and Rare's remarkable ACM action games.
